2:29 P.M.: Healthify, Inc.: Building Social Service Networks to Coordinate Care

Jeff Mays, Vice President of Partnerships

An increasing number of payers have made SDoH a top priority, but creating a sustainable SDoH infrastructure is challenging. Payers are digging deep into data to determine which social needs are impacting costs, prioritizing social interventions based on member populations, and partnering with community-based organizations to provide services. In this session, Healthify Chief Executive Officer Manik Bhat will discuss what health plans should think about when implementing their SDoH strategy.

2:41 P.M.: Tabula Rasa HealthCare: Redefining Medication Safety Through Pharmacy Innovation

Brian Peltz, Area Vice President

Pharmacists can deliver improved outcomes and Star Ratings using patient-specific services. They are the most accessible healthcare providers and can help patients avoid emergency room and hospital visits. In this session, you will learn how pharmacists can redefine MTM services by identifying patients at highest risk for adverse drug events to provide safe, personalized services that result in better quality measures and cost savings. Tabula Rasa HealthCare's patient-centric approach helps pharmacists outline the next steps to mitigate risks and puts the patient at the center of care.

2:53 P.M.: Veyo

Gavin Yoder, Vice President of Business Development

As a social determinant of health, transportation is a key part of healthcare access, and those without reliable transportation face far-reaching consequences. Each year 3.6 million people miss care due to lack of transportation. A lack of reliable transportation not only results in hidden costs for members, caregivers, and providers, but it also inhibits those from accessing the care they deserve. Traditional NEMT models lack transparency, communication, and accountability, resulting in missed pickups, broken down vehicles, inefficient scheduling, extended wait times, lost drivers, and most of all, frustration.

Mr. Yoder, will discuss the implications that technology and transparency have for NEMT, while discussing how Veyo has implemented its transformational model and industry-leading network in Michigan.

You will also hear how Veyo has partnered with state and local governments in the last 18 months to launch critical COVID-19 initiatives, from COVID-19 specialized fleets, emergency delivery programs and transportation for drive-thru COVID-19 vaccine appointments, and how the innovations resulting from COVID-19 will play a pivotal role in the future.

3:05 P.M.: Break3:15 P.M.: Zelis

Colin Hadican, Vice President, Business Development

In today's increasingly complex healthcare payments landscape, payers, providers and members are looking for a better way. Traditionally payers and providers have operated with independent goals and objectives. When you add in members, there is a large misalignment, resulting in lost opportunities for savings and efficiency.

Sending payments via check is a burdensome process. Providers want multiple payment options to fit their needs. By driving electronic adoption, payers can reduce operational costs while keeping providers satisfied. The road to 100% electronic adoption can seem daunting and riddled with obstacles. But with help from Zelis' electronic payments solutions, payers can mitigate the challenges ahead. Delivering a variety of monthly communications to a large network is a costly and complex undertaking that can cause confusion for members. By consolidating member communications and switching up the frequency, payers can reduce claim communications volume and costs, all while keeping members happy. Join Zelis to learn how you can close the gap between payers, provider and members through payments and communications optimization.

3:27 P.M.: Verrica Pharmaceuticals, Inc.

Chris Rofidal, Vice President, Market Access & Reimbursement

Verrica Pharmaceuticals Inc. is a dermatology therapeutics company developing medications for viral skin diseases requiring medical interventions. The company's first product candidate YCANTH™ (Cantharidin, 0.7% w/v) Drug-Device Combination Product is an investigational topical treatment indicated for the treatment of molluscum contagiosum with a PDUFA goal date of September 23, 2021. It is designed to be administered to patients via a single-use precision applicator by a healthcare professional. It has the potential to be the first and only FDA-approved treatment for molluscum contagiosum. Verrica will provide an overview of the molluscum market, general disease characteristics, current non-FDA approved treatment options and product profile.

3:39 P.M.: VARIS

Simon Evans, Business Development

Identify and recover hard dollars in as little as six weeks using VARIS' proprietary three-step process, TAPRx. VARIS partners exclusively with health plans to identify and recover overpayments due to coding and billing errors. The review process can be conducted pre-pay, post-pay or onsite at the provider facility.

VARIS' TAPRx Review three-step process: 1) Data Analytics/Artificial Intelligence (AI), 2) Human Analysis and 3) Complex Medical Record Review ensures maximum health plan recoveries with minimal provider abrasion. VARIS identifies up to 3% of your paid claims dollars using VARIS' proven approach. VARIS works in a high-volume claims environment and our system is configured to manage large data sets.

3:51 P.M.: Scipher Medicine

Erin Connolly-Strong, PhD, MS, Head of Medical Affairs/Executive Director, Market Access
(Virtual presentation)

Scipher Medicine is building the future of patient treatment. Most patients who are prescribed blockbuster therapies today don't respond to treatment, costing the healthcare industry billions in wasted drugs while patients continue to suffer. Scipher's platform identifies which drug will work based on the patient's fundamental disease biology, and not based on symptoms, disease classification, or medical bias. A routine blood test predicts which drug he/she will respond to, with our first product focusing on rheumatoid arthritis, ensuring that the most optimal treatment is prescribed from day one. The molecular data generated by our tests is then used to fuel novel target discovery to address a clear unmet medical need in patients who do not respond to any existing therapy.

General Session: Do We Really Need to Choose Between Affordability and Access? Options for High-Value Prescription Drug Coverage

GOVERNORS' AB

MODERATOR: Karen Jonas, RPh, Michigan Association of Health Plans, Lansing, MI

Sarah Emond, MPP, Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer, Institute for Clinical and Economic Review (ICER), Boston, MA (Ms. Emond will present virtually.)

So many aspects of the status quo of paying for and accessing prescription drugs fail patients. Many want you to believe that we can have either broad access or affordability, but not both. Sarah Emond will introduce you to the work being done at the Institute for Clinical and Economic Review (ICER), and discuss how stakeholders are leveraging ICER's work to chart a different path to ensure better value for their prescription drug spending, all with the goal of creating a more sustainable and just healthcare system.

THURSDAY, JULY 29, 2021, continued2:30 P.M.*Partner Showcase Presentation by Doctor on Demand

Dr. Prentiss Taylor, Vice President for Medical Affairs
(Dr. Taylor will present virtually.)

When demand for virtual care increased sharply at the start of the public health emergency, many questions were raised about how this new technology would impact equitable access to care and social determinants of health (SDoHs). Concerns about rural or low-income populations with potentially more barriers to connectivity sparked conversations about leveraging virtual healthcare to bridge the gap in care access.

According to the USDA Economic Research Service, about one fifth of Michigan's total population is living in rural areas and the poverty rate in rural Michigan is 13.3%, compared with 12.9% in urban areas, with 12.2% of that state's households experiencing food insecurity.

In a study published by the JMIR, researchers from Harvard Medical School, Doctor On Demand, and RAND Corporation studied trends in virtual visits by patient location during the COVID-19 pandemic. Promisingly, the research found that increases in visit volume among rural residents were slightly higher than those among urban residents and the proportion of telehealth visits by patients from lower-income communities also increased slightly.

We'll unpack the implications of this increase in virtual care utilization for populations facing increased SDoHs and how health plans can strategically engage these populations to improve health outcomes.
